Illuminating Social Life: Classical and Contemporary Theory Revisited

In this poem, as in the bulk of the Residencia en la tierra poems, Neruda is tormented to come to grips with time, or the recognition of difference and finality, even in Chile where he faced no language barrier just before his departure to the Orient, where his tenuous economic status seems to weigh on him so heavily. But soften the flaw with self-awareness, or self-deprecating humour Maass, The Fire in Fiction.
